FAA CH Airport Study Denial is Hailed

Although very pleased with the Federal Aviation Administration's denial of a federal grant application to do an airport master planning study, Mayor Henry Wedaa cautioned: "The Inter-County Airport Authority (ICAA) will fall back and regroup."

"This is a significant defeat for the ICAA," Wedaa said, "but it is only a temporary one. They will be back."

Ralph Diedrich, chairman of the Board of Supervisors, revealed late last week that he had received a copy of a letter from Gerald Dallas, chief, Airports District Office, spelling out denial of the ICAA request.

The letter had informed Frank Marshott, Stanton mayor pro tem and chairman of the ICAA of the denial. The ICAA is a joint powers agreement between the cities of Stanton, Chino, Santa Ana and Garden Grove.

Dallas told Marshott the application "does not meet the requirements for sponsor eligibility contained in FAA regulations."

These included committing enough money to actually build the airport, the proposed study is not included in the Southern California Association of Governments (SCAG) overall work program of aviation system plan and is not recognized in the national airport system plan.

Wedaa said Dallas told him Monday that the city's request for a public hearing on the grant application had been denied because the FAA action, made it needless.

Wedaa guessed that the four cities would file as sponsors of a new grant application and then appoint the ICAA as their agent which would "overcome one problem. But there are a number of other significant problems such as those mentioned by the FAA concerning not being a part of SCAG master plan or national airport system plan," Wedaa said.

YLSD, City Get Funds for Projects

City Gets Money For Main Street

Christmas arrived on December 23 for the City of Yorba Linda with word from Washington that an application for federal funds to rehabilitate Main Street had been approved.

The city will get $126,000 to carry out provisions of the Local Public Works Capital Development and Investment Act.

Planning Director Phil Paxton lost no time in spreading the news last Thursday afternoon. He visited all the merchants on Main Street to tell them of the government's favorable action.

Paxton said the money will replace $40,000 which the city had allocated in this fiscal year's budget for Main Street improvement. That limited money would have allowed only work on gutters, sidewalks and curbs. The additional federal dollars will allow considerable more to be accomplished. "We're excited," he

Lt. Rogers for Baker

Since Yorba Linda has been receiving their police service on a contractual basis from the City of Brea, many residents of Yorba Linda have grown to know Lt. Larry Baker who has been assigned as the Police Coordinator to the City of Yorba Linda for over four years.

As part of a career development program carried on by Brea Police Chief Don Forkus, Lt. Baker has been reassigned to assume command of the Department's Investigation Division.

Taking over his responsibilities as the Commander of the Yorba Linda Division will be a 12 year veteran of the Brea Police Department, Lt. Frankie Don Rogers.

Lt. Rogers has a total of 16 years experience in law enforcement and has held the rank of lieutenant for Jubilant reign in Yorba Linda last Thursday, Dec. 23 when the Yorba Linda School District and the city of Yorba Linda received word that both had qualified for federal funds under the Local Public Works Capital Development and Investment Act.

Congressman Charles Wiggins revealed that the YLSD had received approval of its application for a new Education Center in the amount of $2,767,000. This was the largest single grant in North Orange County.

The City of Yorba Linda was awarded $126,000 to begin rejuvenation of Main Street.

The law under which the funds were granted is designed to stimulate economic activity by creating jobs and reducing unemployment.

In addition to these two grants, James Bremer, administrative assistant to the superintendent of the Fullerton Union High School District, revealed that money has been allocated for two projects.

One is for $600,000 for gymnasium facilities at Troy High School. The other is for $525,000 for a swimming pool at Fullerton High.

Bremer said the district was "delighted" even though it received funding for only two of the 30 projects it had submitted. He credited Dave Gammie, director of construction and contracts, with "birdogging the projects."

A separate article concerning the city's fund grant is in the far left hand column and a second story on the YLSD's project is in the far right hand column.

Burglary Prevention Program

Orin C. Church, former Director of the Attorney General's Crime Prevention Unit in Seattle, Washington, has been selected by the Orange County Criminal Justice Council to head its recently established Regional Burglary Prevention Program.

This million-dollar effort will involve the Orange County Sheriff, 14 cities, and thousands of private residents in a concerted effort to reduce burglary through public education in prevention techniques, improvements in private residential security, and marking of potential stolen articles.

For maximum impact, the program will concentrate in five areas: San Clemente, Santa Ana, Garden Grove, Huntington Beach and Placentia. The North Orange

Education Center on Casa Loma

Long hours of work, trips to Seattle and much crossing of fingers paid off for the Yorba Linda School District when officials learned late last week that they had received an "early Christmas gift" in the form of an approximately $2.8 million grant from the federal government.

The monies will be used to construct a new education center at Yorba Linda Blvd. and Casa Loma.

Deputy District Superintendent J. Elton Patridge, upon whom the bulk of the project submittal fell, cheerily talked about the timetable for spending the money.

"We can now proceed with building a 37,000 square foot total Master Plan administration center that was approved to handle the requirements for a unified district," Patridge revealed.

The district will go to bid on site preparation within 90 days of getting official notification of the grant

YEAR-END REVIEW!

The historic Bicentennial Year of 1976 ended on a highly optimistic note in Yorba Linda with the December 23 news that two long anticipated projects had gained federal funding approval.

One is the city-main Street merchants rehabilitation project for the central business district. The other is the new Administration Center for the Yorba Linda School District at Casa Loma and Yorba Linda Blvd.

Yorba Linda completed its ninth year as an incorporated city and is over 60 years old as a community.

The year 1976 was marked by contrasts. There were triumphs and defeats, incidents of joy and others of sorrow, accomplishments and reversals, welcomes and departures, births and deaths, continued growth and promise of more growth.

In this review of 1976 an attempt is made to recall the highlights, in words and photos, as chronicled in the 52 editions of the STAR.

Of all the events four seemed to command the most attention. They were the City Council election and the balloting in the June primaries and the November general election, the controversy over the sign ordinance, the city property tax proposal, and the fire which destroyed the Woman's Club clubhouse.

In close contention, interest-wise, were the resignations and appointments for the Planning Commission, the early planning for development of the Dominguez and Upper K Ranches, the dispute over utilizing the vacant Kountry Market as a City Hall, the merger or unification of the Yorba Linda School District, the firing of the Associate City Planner, eruption of the simmering battle over an airport in the Chino Hills, the deaths of several persons including two prominent civic leaders and the Miss Yorba Linda Pageant and Fiesta Days.

In chronological order, this is 1976 in review:

JANUARY

Eric Travers got the year off on a bright note, by being the first

Bicentennial Year baby on January 1...A special city census was started...The YMCA headquarters were moved to a new location on Yorba Linda Blvd...Torrida Way residents were amazed when water undermined the street and it caved in...The first of several hearings on the sign ordinance pitted merchants against the Planning Commission, City Council, and the Beautification Committee...The Yorba Linda School District inaugurated a "call home" policy to insure that parents were aware of students not being in school...The Junior Woman's Club named Lisa Nolette as "Teen Citizen of the Year"...Parents of Sierra Vista and Van Buren Schools in the Placentia Unified School District protested boundary changes...STAR offices were moved to 4897 Main Street...Merritt Hugins was the first male ever to be honored by the Yorba Linda Girl Scouts Service Unit.

VALIANT ATTEMPT to emulate a reindeer in sunny California was made by Alice Klittredge, left, and Nancy Reed, right, who wore Santa hats and carried toy bags as they rode their horses, Play Boy and Tasha, around town. Alice also used twigs to simulate antlers on her horse.

MOST SPECTACULAR single event in Yorba Linda in 1976 was the late November fire which destroyed the Yorba Linda Woman's Clubhouse. The fire occurred on the night before the organization's biggest fund raising event of the year and most of the items to be sold the next day were also destroyed. (Jane Caswell photo) exclaimed. This would include, according to Paxton, installing decorative concrete sidewalks, an identification sign at the intersection of Main and Imperial Highway, street furniture and elimination of drainage problems for some stores during storms.

No less excited was Jack Bisson, chairman of the Main Street merchants committee which had done considerable study on up-grading the central business district.

That committee had visited several cities and had settled on a Western/Spanish motif for redoing stores and the street as had been done in the City of San Dimas to the north and east.

"Really great," Bisson said when informed of the availability of the federal dollars. He intimated that the committee would be activated after key members meet with Paxton and other city officials to determine their timetable for the improvements.

After ascertaining the city's timetable Bisson said the merchants will "let the city know what we plan to do."

Bisson said the merchants will have to decide what they are going to do with their buildings. He pointed out that there is already a "starting point" following the initial studies.

Paxton added that Southern California Edison is scheduled to underground their utility lines beginning in January. Pacific Telephone has already accomplished this task.

The city got $21,044 from motor vehicle license fees, $19,002 from highway users taxes and $4,940 from cigarette taxes.

Airport...

The mayor promised: "We'll attack when they stick their heads up again. It is unfortunate we can't kill this airport plan now but that day will come."

Wedaa was very pleased with the FAA action and noted that it is "very interesting that the FAA in recent years and by this action has demonstrated an attempt to develop better relations with communities around airports rather than following old and non-existent policies in running roughshod over communities."

"The FAA is certainly to be commended for enlightened attempts at regulating new airport development and considering their impact on neighboring communities."

Commenting on the FAA denial Diedrich declared: "It is obvious to me that this proposed study is another attempt by ICAA to continue pursuing their dream of an airport in the Chino Hills."

"This attempt, like all the rest in the past, has failed. For many reasons, including topography and impact on people, I do not believe an airport will ever be located in Chino Hills."

approval. Patridge said plans are complete for grading and development.

He added that bid will be followed by another for building the facilities on the site.

These will include three buildings. One will be the Education and Instructional Resources building which will house offices for the administration now headquartered at Linda Vista School.

A second building will contain a central kitchen for a high school and elementary schools at full saturation which, Patridge explained, would include two new elementary schools.

The third building will be a combined warehouse/transportation facility. In this structure will be hydraulic lifts for buses and cars, gasoline storage and pumps; woodworking, metal and welding facilities and all the equipment necessary for grounds maintenance.

Patridge stressed that the federal funds includes money for all the needed equipment for the buildings on the site.

The district official noted that the project, in fulfilling the terms of the legislation, will put many tradesmen in several categories to work in Yorba Linda.

The district would have had a much more limited project had it not received the federal money, Patridge said. It would have built a 6,000 square foot building to house only the administration and "everything else would have been left where it is." The estimated cost would have been $38,790.

Patridge revealed that the district has sold $1,655,000 of a bond issue approved by the voters two years ago for various projects. The rest is left until growth of the district would requalify the district for another bond issue based on increased assessed valuation.

The superintendent said it is "neat that we still have the bonds. This will enhance our chances for unification."

Patridge said members of the board had been informed of the federal grant by Superintendent Sterling Fox and they had expressed pleasure over the development.

Rate Hike Disappoints Edison

Southern California Edison Company said that it is "disappointed" at the $44.5 million general rate increase granted by the California Public Utilities Commission.

The concurrent CPUC approval of an earlier Edison filing for an energy cost adjustment will have the net result of maintaining present rates—not increasing them, as requested in the general rate case filed two and one-half years ago.
Edison filed for a general rate increase of $339 million on June 7, 1974. One and one-half years later the Commission authorized partial relief, totalling $79.6 million, on Dec. 30, 1975.
The final action by the CPUC authorized an additional $44.5 million increase in general rates. Concurrently, however, the Commission reduced Edison's rates by a like amount of $44.5 million to reflect an earlier filing Edison made at the direction of the CPUC in response to reductions in the cost of fuel used in making electricity and purchased power. The net effect is that Edison's rates will stay at about the current level.
Jack K. Horton, SCE board chairman and chief executive officer, said he was disappointed that the Commission took two and one-half years to decide the case and was also disappointed at the amount of the general rate relief. "Everyone is familiar with inflation and the increasing costs that have taken place in the past two and one-half years. In spite of continuing cost controls and a force reduction our costs have increased and the CPUC has not properly recognized them."
"Therefore, we have no alternative but to file soon for additional rate relief," he added.

Workman Replaced

A replacement is being sought for head football coach of Valencia High School, it was indicated this week, with the announcement that Fred Workman, who has held the position for three years will spend full time as a teacher.

Bob Jones, principal of Valencia said that search for a coach is beginning immediately and will be completed by April. Jones reported a complete reorganization of sports at the school with a different philosophy and pattern.

Workman who came to the school district with outstanding credentials and win records has had difficulty getting the Valencia teams into the win columns. The record for the past three years has been 1-25-1 with the sole win over San Dimas early this season.

The high school is the smallest in the Placentia Unified School District and for that reason has had recruiting problems, it was indicated.
